

Google Alert

Haven't used this one yet, but it looks great! This is for anyone who would like to be notified by Google of any changes made to certain searches. For instance, if you are interested in project based learning, you can use Google Alert to continue to make the same search each day and notify you, via email, of any changes in the search results from one day to another.

Here's a link to an AtomicLearning tutorial about it:

<http://movies.atomiclearning.com/movie/k12/5935/play>

You'll have to sign in to view this video. If you don't remember your AL username and password, please check with your Building Tech Rep or me.

Please remember that limited bandwidth is an issue in our district.

We're asking that you access AL videos only before and after school hours. Of course, you can access them from home anytime you want.